Fictional Notice Duties: Academic Footnote Demonstration

Synthetic Test Author

2026

Scope

Every authority, court, institution and publication in this paper is fictional. The example tests formatting and has no legal research value. It is deliberately shorter than a Capstone. A fictional court addressed notice.[1] The next citation tests a changed pinpoint.[2] The same pinpoint tests an unchanged Id. citation.[3] The principal article describes delayed notice.[4] An intervening book supplies another view.[5] The article returns with a supra reference.[6]

Other authorities

The fictional statute defines notice.[7] An administrative regulation supplies a related procedure.[8] A professional body offers an ethics opinion.[9] The project website describes the fictional proposal.[10] The book is cited again to test a second supra target.[11] The case returns after intervening authori-

[1] Harlow v. Quill Data Services, 88 W. App. R. 201, 214 (Westmarch Ct. App. 2022).

[2] Id. at 215.

[3] Id.

[4] Adaeze Okafor, Delay and Imaginary Notice Duties, 7 J. Imaginary Privacy L. 61, 88–90 (2020).

[5] Tove Lindqvist, Notice and Its Discontents 12 (2nd ed. 2018).

[6] Okafor, supra note 4 at 92.

[7] Fictional Notice Act, Westmarch Code § 4(a)(2) (official ed. 2025).

[8] Fictional Notice Procedure, 9 Westmarch Admin. Code § 12.3(b) (annual ed. 2025).

[9] Westmarch Bar Ethics Comm., Fictional Notice Ethics, Formal Op. 26-01, para. 7 (2026).

[10] Imaginary Law Institute, Fictional Notice Project, Example Project para. 3 (Jan. 2, 2026), https://example.org/fictional-notice.

[11] Lindqvist, supra note 5 at 15–17.

ties.[12]

Explanations and signals

One note combines authorities and signals.[13] An explanatory note preserves ordinary Markdown emphasis.[14] An inline Markdown note also accepts a citation.[15] A note can hold separated citation clusters.[16] A prose-only footnote interrupts Id. eligibility.[17] The book after that interruption must use supra, not Id.[18] Paragraph and note locators retain labels.[19] An article note locator remains visible.[20]

Conclusion

Automation arranges citations. A human checks every authority, proposition, pinpoint, short form and current treatment. Word totals exclude these notes; page totals describe the actual rendered PDF rather than a prediction.

[12] Harlow, 88 W. App. R. at 219.

[13] see Harlow v. Quill Data Services, 88 W. App. R. 201, 220 (Westmarch Ct. App. 2022), discussing timing; cf. Adaeze Okafor, Delay and Imaginary Notice Duties, 7 J. Imaginary Privacy L. 61, 93 (2020).

[14] This is explanatory prose with emphasis. Harlow v. Quill Data Services, 88 W. App. R. 201, 221–223 (Westmarch Ct. App. 2022). The discussion remains in the same editable footnote.

[15] This explanation introduces another provision. Fictional Notice Act, Westmarch Code § 5(b) (official ed. 2025).

[16] Compare the first approach Adaeze Okafor, Delay and Imaginary Notice Duties, 7 J. Imaginary Privacy L. 61, 94 (2020) with the second approach Tove Lindqvist, Notice and Its Discontents chap. 2 (2nd ed. 2018) before drawing a conclusion.

[17] This note contains commentary without a citation.

[18] Lindqvist, supra note 5 at 20.

[19] Harlow v. Quill Data Services, 88 W. App. R. 201, para. 24 (Westmarch Ct. App. 2022).

[20] Adaeze Okafor, Delay and Imaginary Notice Duties, 7 J. Imaginary Privacy L. 61, n. 4 (2020).